

Inside Out

The walls are disappearing between house and garden in South Florida

Written by MARIE SPEED

Part of the joy of Florida living is its easy movement from indoors to outdoors, from kitchens to living rooms. Here are a few looks we love that celebrate our natural gravitation to the tropical wonderland we call home.

This outdoor kitchen by MM Designs was highlighted by laser-cut panels custom-made by Chic Setter to differentiate the outdoor space and create drama in the shadow effect. The wall was clad in porcelain tile (and subtle built-in sconces), and the countertops were recycled sea glass from Haifa Limestone. The chaises were from Wayfair.
